

What Candidates Are Saying - Calls for End of 'Overflights'

The United States should cancel flights of its aircraft over and near the Sino-Soviet territories, according to James Kellis, Democratic candidate for Congress.

Kellis said that since the U-2 incident when contradicting statements caused "considerable confusion and loss of confidence in the United States" that the Soviet Union can shoot down U.S.

planes, even outside their boundaries and the U.S. government is "still hard pressed to prove the facts."

Speaking at a meeting of Royal Oak Democrats, Kellis, former Operations Chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, said that there are other means by which photographic intelligence can be obtained without causing dangerous and embarrassing incidents.

He pointed out that the satellite projects, Samos and Midas, could obtain nearly the same results as manned aircraft overflying the Soviet Union and still "at least technically, not violate Soviet airspace."
